ELEVEN WESTERN BUILDERS · SINCE 1983

Switching to StruXure.co from Procore: a multi-state builder's journey

Eleven Western builds grocery stores, restaurants, and pharmacies for national retail chains from four offices across the 11 western states. They moved their project management from Procore to StruXure.co then integrated financials into Sage 100 (accounting).

Leaving Procore: a typical move

About 90 to 100 days, start to finish. Typical sequence, not Eleven Western's own dates

1. Renewal due — A Procore renewal comes due.
2. First call — Questions on features and setup.
3. Demo — With the StruXure.co product manager.
4. 14-day trial — The team tries the platform first-hand.
5. Agreements — Contract and customer agreements.
6. Pick projects — Choose which jobs move from Procore.
7. Go live — Project teams work in StruXure.co.

Grocery, Restaurants & Retail · Est. 1983

Rick Backus and his father, Wayne, opened Eleven Western Builders in 1983 with a staff of eleven. The early work was fast-track retail, mostly grocery stores and restaurants.

Clients today include Albertsons, Vons, Safeway, Aldi, Sprouts and Walmart, CVS pharmacies and Quick Quack and Soapy Joe's car washes. The firm remodels stores that stay open while crews work and has built more than 20 schools in California.

StruXure.co announced the move from Procore in November 2025. Project management now runs in StruXure.co, with financials integrated into Sage 100.

> "We selected StruXure because of the enterprise functionality, customer service, and white-glove migration package. Our business could no longer justify paying a percent of revenue every year to Procore while the cost of software has dropped so dramatically while they kept raising prices."

Brett Backus, Chief Operating Officer, Eleven Western Builders

Why StruXure.co

StruXure.co is the world's most contractor-centric construction platform. For a builder leaving Procore, that comes down to value, functionality, and access to your data on your terms.

Pricing certainty
A transparently published annual license with Service Level Agreement (SLA) and setup included.

Outside parties at no fee
No fee for architects, engineers, owners or subcontractors.

The records stay yours
Under StruXure.co's Data Bill of Rights, project records remain the builder's property.

Export any time
Open-API export whenever you want it, and a one-step download at closeout.

> "Brett and his team continue to push the industry forward with industry-leading innovation, cost controls, and coordination across the United States. Eleven Western is literally building America and we are proud to support them every day."

Michael Guido, StruXure.co
